Details:

Timberline Lodge and the Palmer Snowfield have been a host to summer ski training camps for clubs, academies and the US Ski Team for more than five decades. August normally provides the highest quality training with consistently good weather, overnight freezes and less crowding. This year's snowpack is substantial and insures sufficient snow for the entire summer.

Camp participants will be required to secure their own accommodations and provide for their own meals and transportation.

Lodging:

There are a number of lodging options near Mt. Hood. Many families prefer to be in Government Camp (15 minutes to Timberline) while less expensive options exist in Welches (30 minutes) and further towards Portland in Sandy (45 minutes) or north towards Hood River (1 hour). An alternative may be driving or renting an RV. Please be advised that meeting times at Timberline may be as early as 6:30AM when planning lodging.

Schedule:

Arrival should be planned for the day before the first day of each session and departure can be either after skiing on the final day or the following day.

Normal daily operations will have lifts beginning to operate at 7:00AM. It is possible that in order to manage capacity, Timberline will go to a two session program. That would mean the first session may begin even earlier at 6:00AM and the second session would follow with loading at 8:30AM. In that event, we will make every effort for Ability athletes to train in the first session and Age Class athletes in the second session. Training sessions will typically be 3 hours in length.

Current Team Summit COVID-19 on-snow training protocols will be in effect.

Timberline is currently requiring all guests to wear masks when indoors and in lift lines.

While Team Summit will continue to emphasize adherence to our protocols, each participant must assume personal responsibility for their actions and also recognize that the actions of others may increase their own risk of infection.

Families may choose to expand their bubble to include other Team Summit families in their travel planning but will continue to be expected to maintain 6' distancing from coaches and other athletes outside their bubble. Developing ANY symptoms of COVID-19 or suspected exposure to infected individuals must be reported to coaches immediately. Please do not come to training if you develop symptoms or have become exposed.

Any withdrawal from camp for injury or health reasons will receive a pro-rated refund of camp fees.

As increasing numbers of citizens are becoming vaccinated and those who are 16+ being eligible, there is cause for increased optimism regarding “normalcy” by the beginning of the new school year. It is, however, premature to return to group travel and accommodations.

We recognize that logistics are challenging and costs are high we ask you to register by July 10 to confirm that the camp is viable. If low enrollments require an adjustment to budget we will inform registered participants of changes and allow withdrawal without penalty. If insufficient enrollments are received we will cancel the Mt. Hood Camp on or before July 15.

Please consider waiting until camp is confirmed to finalize lodging and travel arrangements. If sufficient enrollments are received prior to July 10 we will confirm at the earliest possible date.
